Look up to America with its contributions and offerings

The natural resources of our fruitful land along with the varied inventions of our experimental minds have made America the ever-growing, prosperous country that it is today. From the historic area of Boston, Massachusetts, to our nation's entertainment capital in Hollywood, California, we can take advantage of a rich and beautiful land. In our own Chicagoland area we can find many historical landmarks, points of interest, and recreational opportunities unavailable in any other nation. We should look up to America to see all that America has to offer, be it here in our own community or elsewhere across the United States.

Realize the value of history in the American development

Several peoples of diverse origins and backgrounds came to this land in search of freedom from the strict laws and regulations of their homelands. The merging of their various traditions and customs created the birth of a new nation and developed the growth of a new society. Realizing the value of our history and heritage, we are interested not only in the development of our country as a whole but also as the union of a number of individual communities. We feel pride and respect for the combination of nationalities and religions as the basis of our lifestyle. We want America to be an example for all people of all nations throughout the world.

Be willing to experiment and adapt to the changing times

Although we are mindful of our past, we Americans continue to change with the times. We are an experimental people by nature who are constantly searching for new ideas and testing them through trial and error. We are a people in motion who use innovation as a means of improving our conditions and bettering our lifestyle. Our adaptability to change enables us to further develop ourselves as a productive and expansive nation and to leave our old manners and customs behind. Through political change, social reform, industrial innovation, and scientific experimentation, we help America to develop and grow.

Understand the coexistence of individuality and democracy

Because we are born of the American paradox which at once inspires individuality and democratic unity, we sometimes flounder as we seek our individuality. Too often in asserting our personal rights we violate the rights or freedom of others, or in seeking our identity we adopt the appearances or attitudes of others. As individuals we exercise our freedom of choice through our attire, activities, and verbal expressions; however as a group, we frequently appear to look, act, and speak alike. In spite of our floundering, we prove to have simultaneous faith in the unity of people and in the strength of the individual here in America.

Student Life

In addition to their participation in activities and sports at Morton West, students still alloted time to "do their own thing" when off campus. Some spent their leisure hours visiting the many historical points of interest while others were satisified "cruisin' McDonald's" or partying. Many students enjoyed current movies including Jaws, the new top money maker. The nearby ticketron was invaluable in obtaining tickets to see concerts and Chicago professional baseball, basketball, football, and hockey games. Students relaxed at home viewing popular television programs such as Monty Python's Flying Circus and Happy Days.

School, community act as showcases of Americana

Living in a suburban area bordering Chicago and attending a comprehensive high school servicing over 3,000 pupils, the students of Morton West had little problem in experiencing aspects of American life. Their heritage was evident in several art, history and literature courses and in landmarks and museums of the Chicago area. They encountered American innovation and experimentation in adapting to the changing nature of their school and community. The large size of both provided a wide range of individual choices in courses, recreation, entertainment and expression. Yet at the same time with the large school and community populations, the students had many opportunities to work in unity with others to build for a bright and promising future.

Textbooks and daily lives provide national heritage

Morton students confronted their nation's heritage in more places than their textbooks. Lyons students passed the historic Lyons Water Tower enroute to school. Bicycling during leisure time, students rode through Riverside, a registered historic landmark, or through Oak Park, which has several homes designed by Frank Lloyd Wright. On weekends students visited Oak Brook's Old Graue Mill or for a change of pace traveled to downtown Chicago to visit its many museums or view its renown examples of architecture. Students enjoyed an American art form, the musical comedy, in Chicago's legitimate and dinner theatres and the Mortons' own production of Gypsy.

Students face America's tradition of rapid change

In the past year Morton students have often come face to face with America's rapid change, innovation and experimentation. In school they confronted three important changes: the new computer system, the new class schedule and the widening of the girls' sports program. After school to meet their hectic schedule of school, jobs and homelife, the students frequented quick service restaurants such as McDonald's and Yandee Doodle. For shopping they turned to the new Riverside Park, an example of the boom in American shopping centers. When they found time to enjoy a hobby, many communicated over citizen band radio units, a rapidly growing interest across the entire nation.

American concepts part of students' daily routine

American concepts of individuality and unity were exemplified in the daily lives of the Morton West students. In school through the wide variety of activities and classes, the students could tailor a program to fit their individual needs. The outer community offered many areas for them to explore individual tastes in entertainment, sports, recreation, fashion and art. The large school body and the heavily populated community area also offered them many opportunities to work with others. Classwork encouraged the exchange of ideas through discussion and group work. School and community athletic programs demanded the kind of teamwork that carried the boys' soccer and the girls' bowling teams downstate.

Juniors Patty Giannis, Jim Gustin, Chris Ambrosia and Bill Baley (below) congregate outside the D-hall wing after school where it is commonplace for students to discuss the latest gossip and upcoming events.

Students seek happiness in school and social life

In a school as large as Morton West and a metropolis as large as the Chicagoland area, it was not difficult for students to pursue their right to happiness. They found enjoyment in meeting with friends during school or after school at playnights, sports gatherings and club activities and in attending the special events: homecoming, turnabouts and prom. Wintery nights provided the right conditions for Ski Club members and others who enjoyed skiing, tobogganing and ice skating with family and friends. Singles, couples and groups turned to roller skating, bowling and tennis for activity and to TV, movies and popular music for entertainment and relaxation.

Student's view optimistic during bicentennial years

Morton West students seemed to realize that even in a year of economic hardships, political scandal, and rising crime rates, America is still a land of promise. Counselors encouraged optimism by giving insights to students on college and vocational plans. The various school-work programs initiated students into the job world. In the large Chicago metropolitan area the job outlook for graduates was hopeful, and the opportunities for additional schooling or travel were many. In celebrating our country's bicentennial, students realized that America would survive the present and future problems as it had managed to weather those of the past.

Academics

American history has shown countless numbers of people coming to our great nation with a variety of customs and beliefs. The combination of these values and traditions has influenced the American way of life especially in our educational system. America has employed a comprehensive study program which attempts to prepare all individuals for academic fields of study, vocational occupations, and social living. Morton West under one roof has endeavored to offer a comprehensive program. West's curriculum consisted of physical education, fine arts, practical arts, language arts, social science, and math and natural science.

English program adjusts to meet students' needs

Besides gearing its American literature classes to the Bicentennial celebration, the English Department not only emphasized fundamental skills but also tried to meet individual needs in preparing students for the choice between further education or employment. Thus the department restructured the sophomore curriculum. It developed a continuous grammar system for freshmen and sophomores and eliminated the team teaching program. Mr. W. Ritis stated, "If team teaching were to be reinstated, there should be more of an option for the students." The junior and senior elective program expanded with the addition of British prose and poetry and business communications.

Language students learn value of foreign cultures

Studying a foreign language is important in understanding the diverse backgrounds of the people that formed and developed our nation. This knowledge serves as a vehicle to introduce students to the thoughts and customs of another culture as well as to some more complex concepts about language. A tremendous increase from four to seven Italian classes brought the foreign language enrollment up. Because of this enlarged number, Mrs. M. Zlotow taught Italian as well as English. Except for a decline in German over the past few years, enrollment in other language classes remained about the same. Mr. J. Zupsich and Mrs. M. Heinz left on sabbatical leaves of absence.

Working her algebra problem on the board, Carole Volenec (right) notices a mistake in her work and immediately makes the correction.

Working on a newly introduced exercise concerning quadratic equations, Bob Gauger (below) concentrates on solving problems with two variables.

Decline in math students raises job opportunities

Mathematics has played an important role in the scientific advancement of our country; however, enrollment in math courses has steadily declined. Students felt that there was no future in jobs related to math. Mr. R. Lindhorn said, "There's been such a decline that there's a great need for more people in engineering. There are more opportunities than can be filled." Students took advantage of the new nine week consumer section in general math classes to fulfill the state requirement. Mini-calculators, used on a trial basis, were another addition to this course. Students competed in the annual math contest in which winners received national recognition.

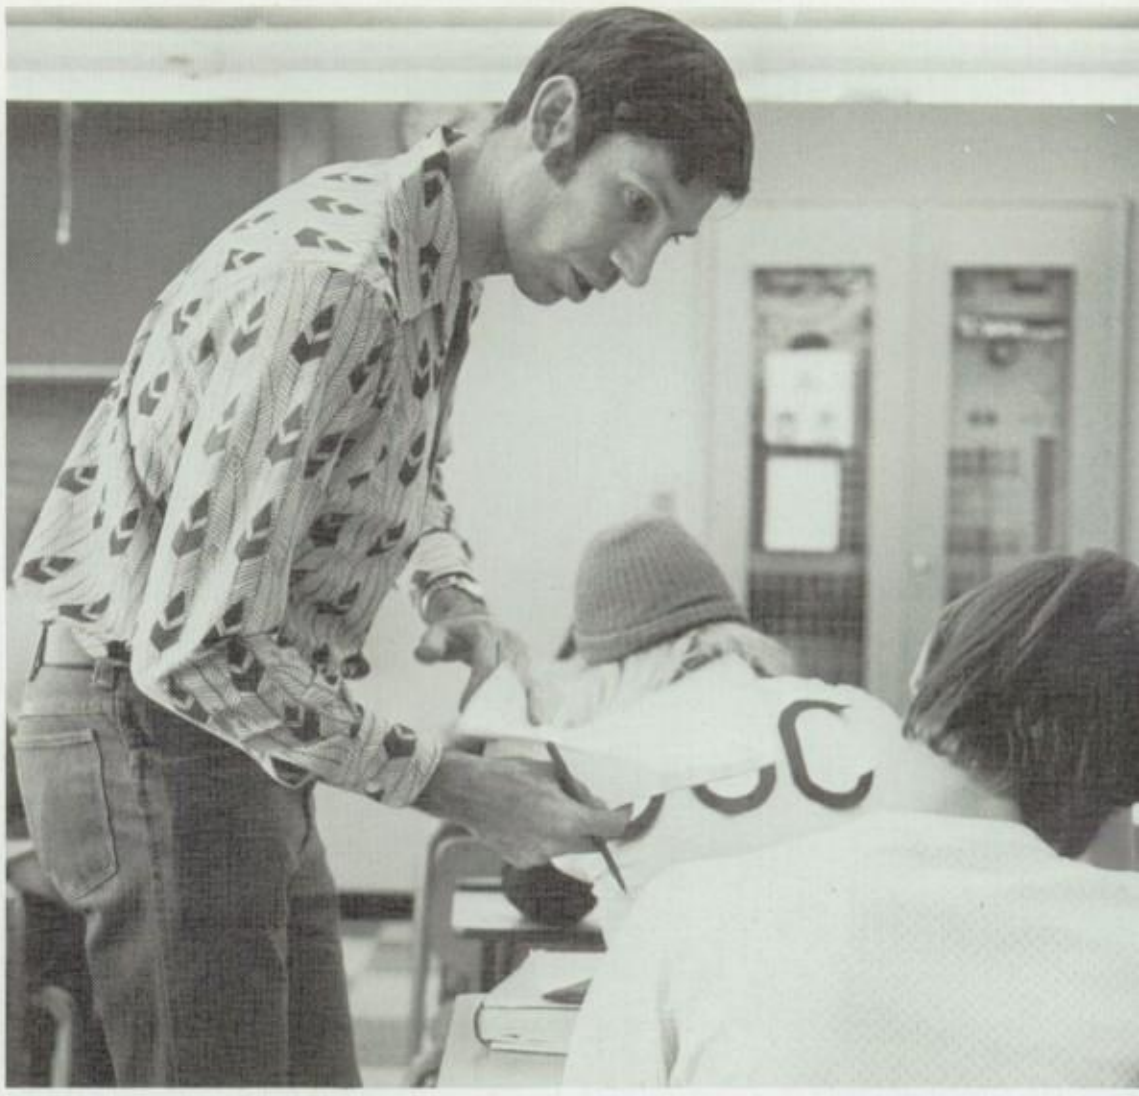
Students relate science to contemporary issues

One of the main ideas stressed by the Natural Science Department was that a student, through his study of science, not only learns more about the physical world but also understands that there is an inter-relationship in all areas of science and social science. Mr. R. Lindhorn, division head, stated, "A student should have enough background in science to evaluate both sides of the question on abortion, pollution, the world's food supplies, conservation of electricity, and the oil crisis. He should have more of an awareness of the role science plays and how it's related to politics and social science." Course content and enrollment remained fairly constant.



Helping a student understand the principal of molecular motion, Mr. T. Cleckner (above, right) supplies the background information on a problem.

After preparing his solution, Russ Jaskot (right) funnels it into the burette to get the proper results from his advanced chemistry experiment.

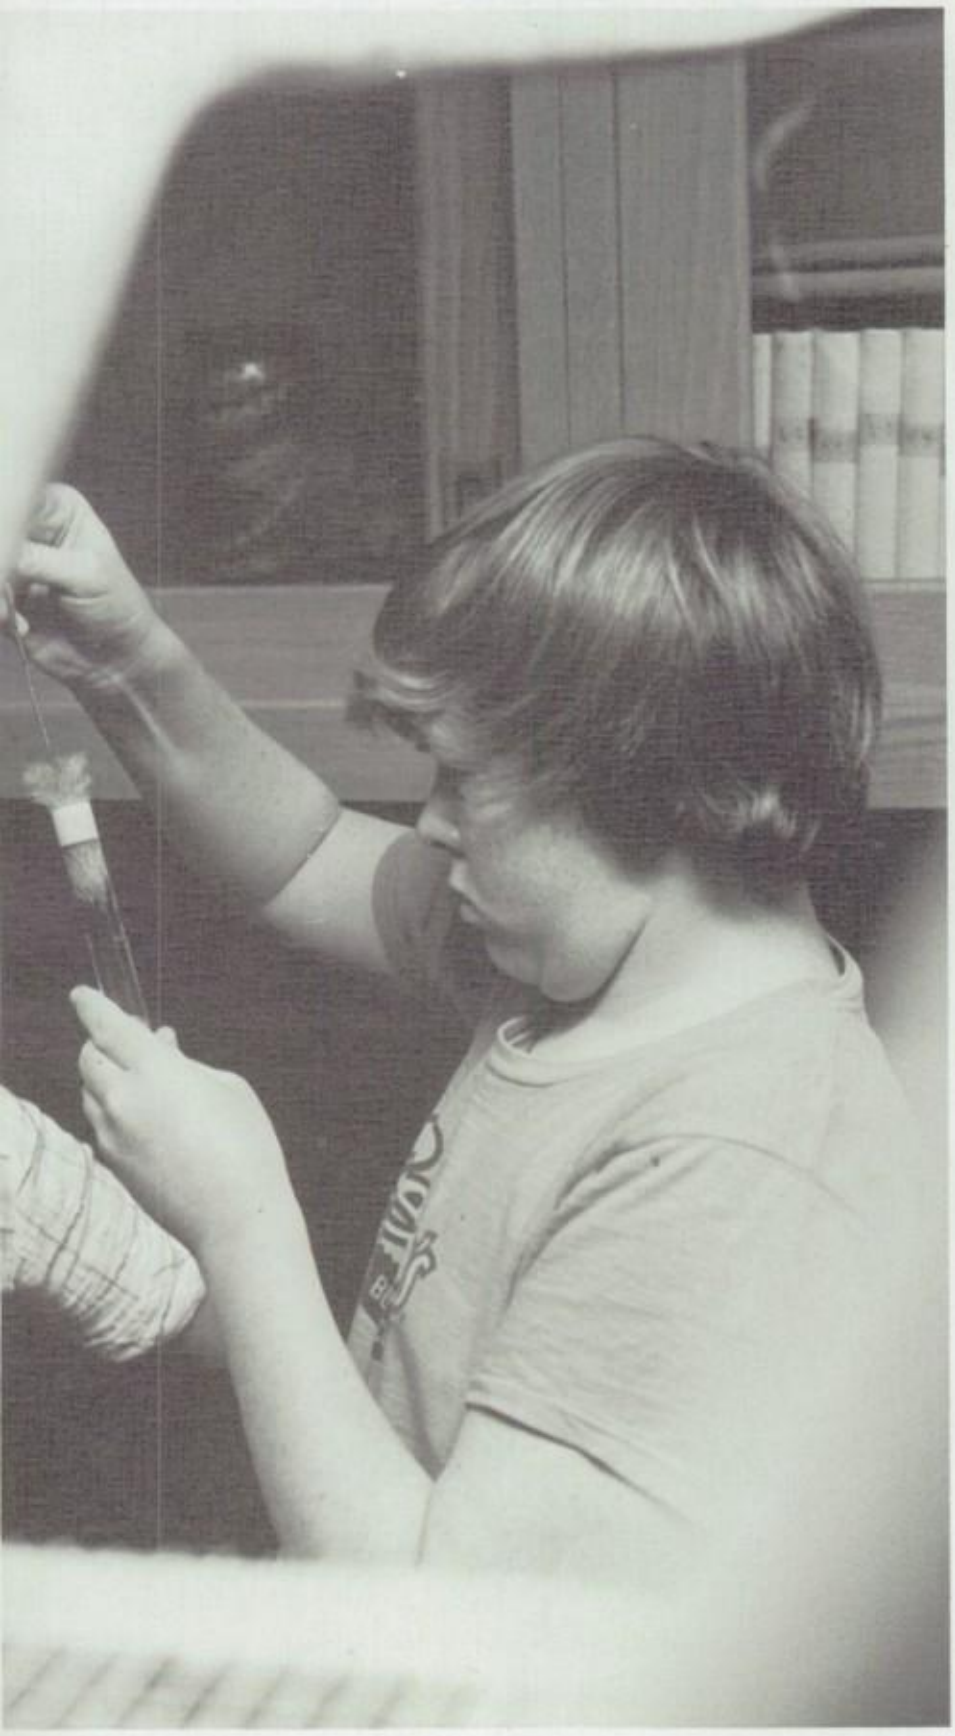
To insure the proper results in his next biology experiment, Tim Tobin (below, left) cleans his test tube thoroughly.

As Mr. G. Kuecher adds explosive materials to a class-made volcano, Gerald Treckler (below) anticipates the expected results.



Realizing the different roles in society, this sociology student (right) compares the distinct traits of the upper and lower classes.

Discussing the value of a budget with his family psychology class, Mr. R. Koehler (below) points out that credit cards can often be overused.

Students show pride in our cultural foundations

Mrs. R. Princ, Social Science Division head, stated, "You can't pick up a newspaper or watch a TV program that doesn't have something to do with social science. Nothing could be more relevant." There has been a steady and significant increase in enrollment for the social science courses. Students have become more interested in America's history and heritage. They are proud of the combination of cultures that is the basis of our nation. Miss J. Shapiro entered the department to teach American history. Mr. W. Buchinger of the Physical Education Department substituted as a family psychology teacher. The department sponsored a spring trip to Washington, D. C.

Students study history's influence on modern art

"The development of art through history has had its effect on contemporary art just as the American Revolution had its effect on today's society," stated Mr. J. Umbaugh. "We need to impart this to the students so they may better understand art." The new class schedule created a greater availability of working areas in art and enabled students to come in more often to work on individual projects. Many were able to offer their views of America through their art in an Art Department display in the main foyer last fall. Thus, students had a better chance of realizing Mr. Umbaugh's goal of studying art history and tying it to the various styles and forms of contemporary art.

Leading the freshman mixed chorus, Mr. J. Macdonald (below) listens carefully to insure the correct harmony of their blending voices.

Concert Band performs for White House guests

Music students tried to better understand the meaning of human relationships and group cultures in order to gain an understanding of our own musical heritage. They learned to communicate effectively through music. Besides their usual participation in two concerts, halftime shows, and parades, the Concert Band went to Washington, D.C., in the spring to play at the White House. The band, orchestra, and choral groups took part in solo and ensemble competitions held downstate. Winners received state-wide recognition. The pit orchestra also performed in the fall musical, Gypsy. The choral groups presented in their thirteenth annual spring concert for friends and families.

The marching band (left) is a common sight in the Morton West parking lot as it practices the music and drills that it will perform at football games.

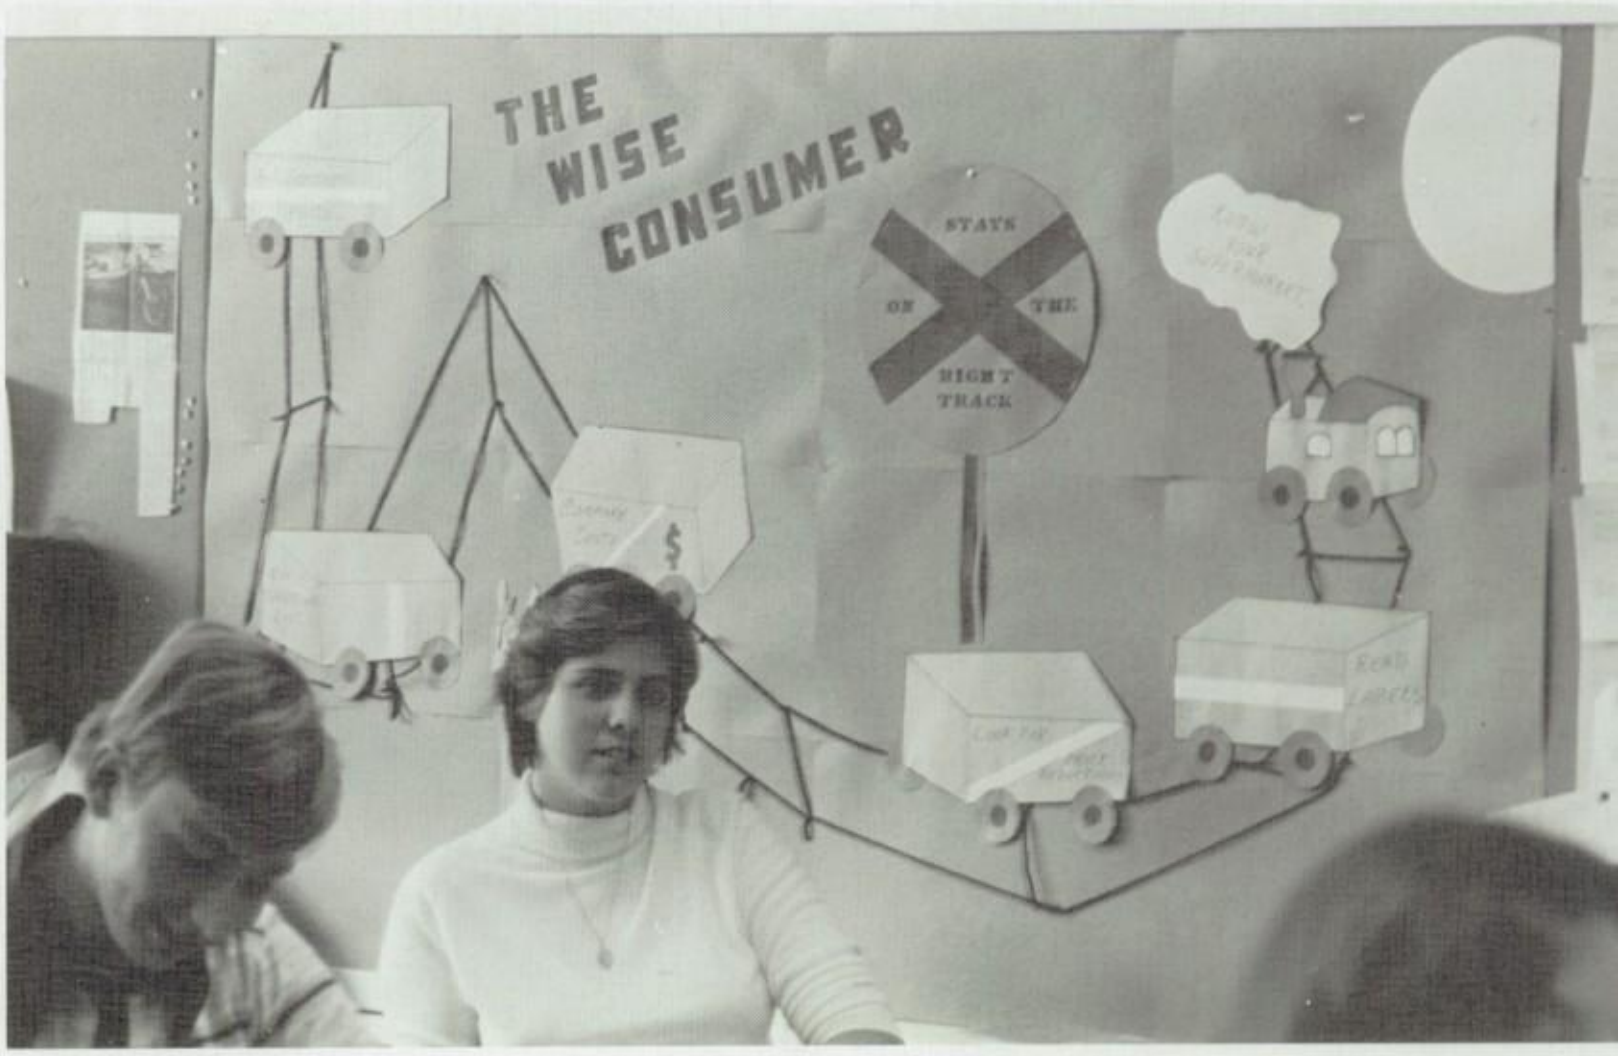
Learning a new piece of music can often be frustrating. Mary Jane Poupa (below, left) displays her deep concentration as she practices her cello.

While practicing on her viola, Cindy Perez (below) demonstrates the skill of reading a complex score needed for performing in an orchestra concert.

Exemplifying a typical secretarial task, Sherry Erickson (right) transcribes a letter from her shorthand text.

While typing a business letter, Barb Dunne (below) pauses to take dictation from a transcribing machine.

During her consumer education class, Sharon Pacino (below, right) learns the steps to economic shopping.



Business students study principles of enterprise

Education in the business area provided knowledge of the function of business enterprise and the principles that govern the provision of goods and services to customers and consumers. The Business Department emphasized the necessity of adapting to an evolving philosophy of the role of business in our dynamic society. Courses also provided training for the student's own personal use, whether it be as a student, professional, home owner, or housekeeper. Because of an enlarged enrollment, the number of faculty increased. The increase was, in part, a result of the great number of students enrolled in consumer education, which is a new graduation requirement by Illinois law.

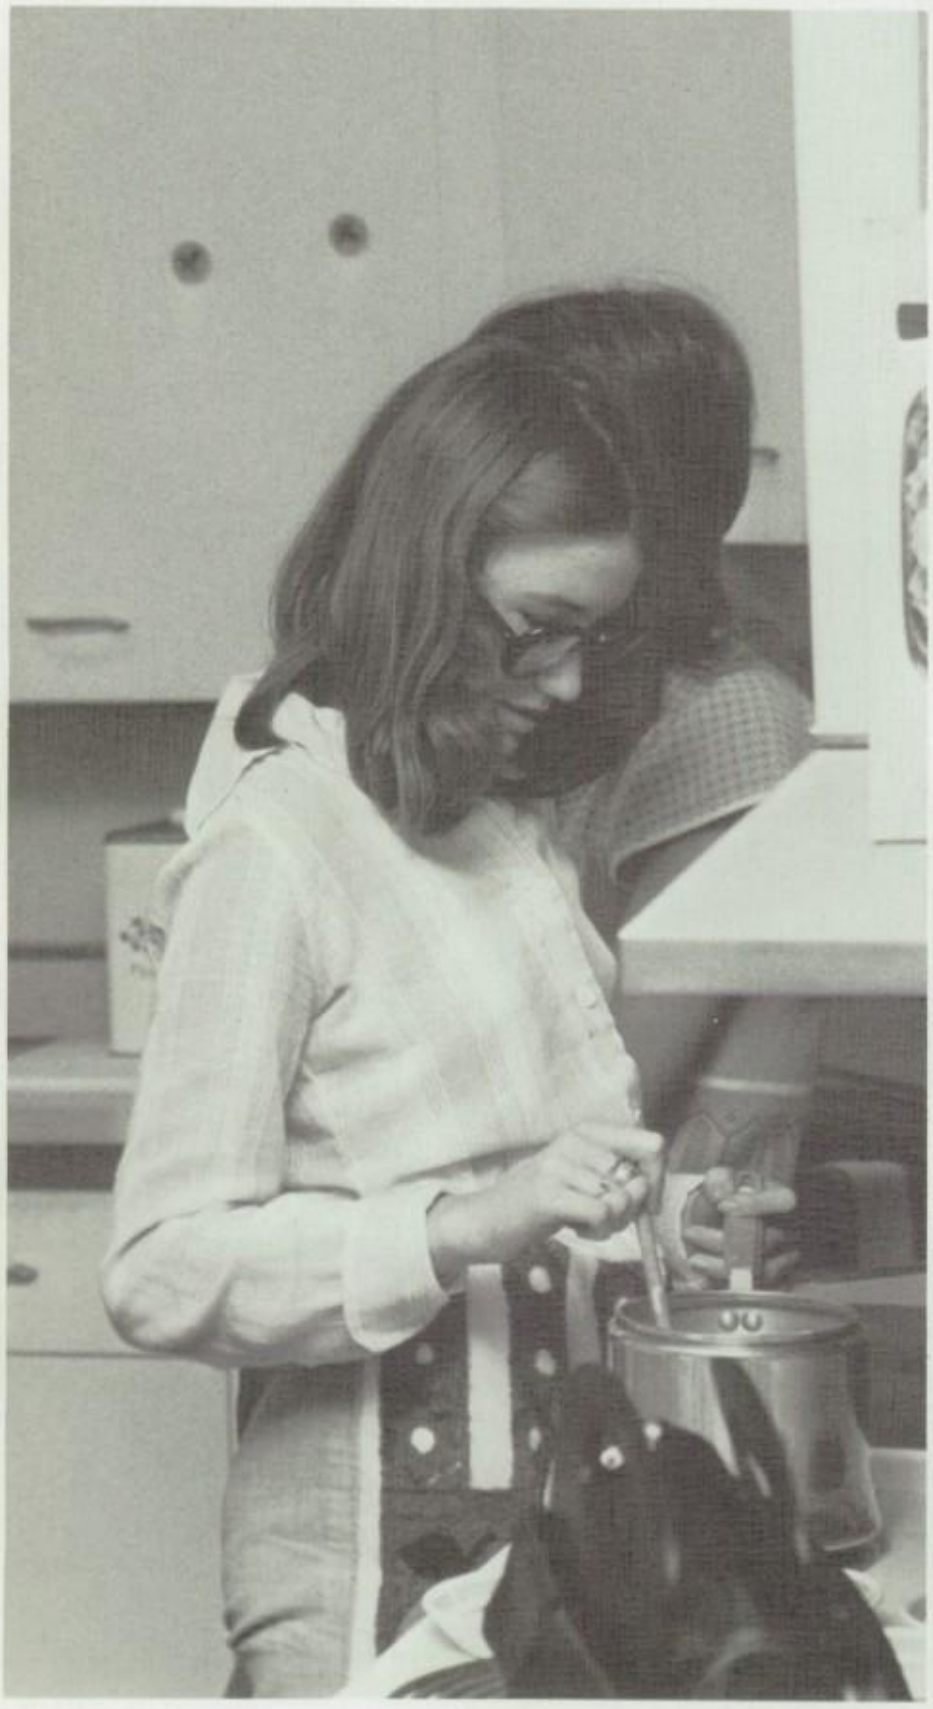
To prevent her sauce from scalding, Susan Deeds (below) slowly stirs the mixture and at the same time keeps an eye on the heat.

Among the many games and activities in child development, both Sue Jack and Maureen (below, right) seem to enjoy the seesaw the most.



Trend toward simplicity includes homemade items

Over the past few years, students have placed more emphasis on homemade products. There has been a trend toward the simplicity of America's past when beautiful but useful items were made at home. Miss M. Perkins, department chairman, said, "We update our courses every year to meet current styles and trends because we feel that this is a very relevant subject. Much stress has been put on it by the news media." The Home Economics Department worked in cooperation with the Business Department in the new consumer education course. For nine weeks of the semester, students studied the economic aspects of consumerism, including budgeting, housing, and furnishing.

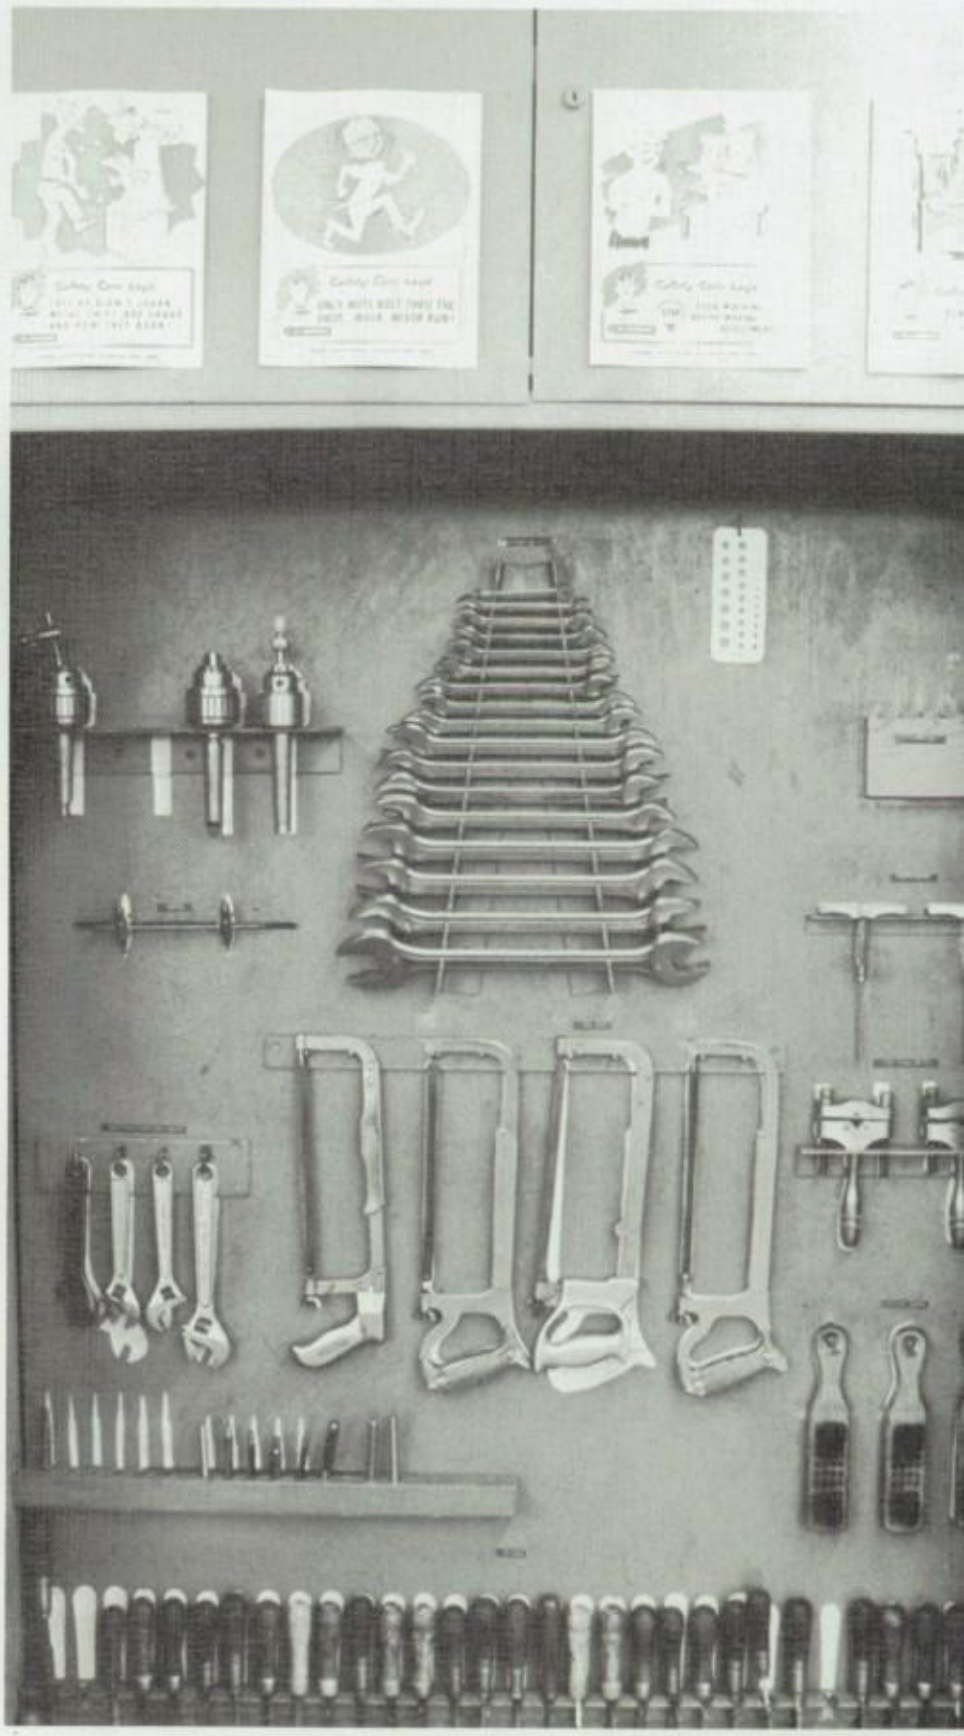
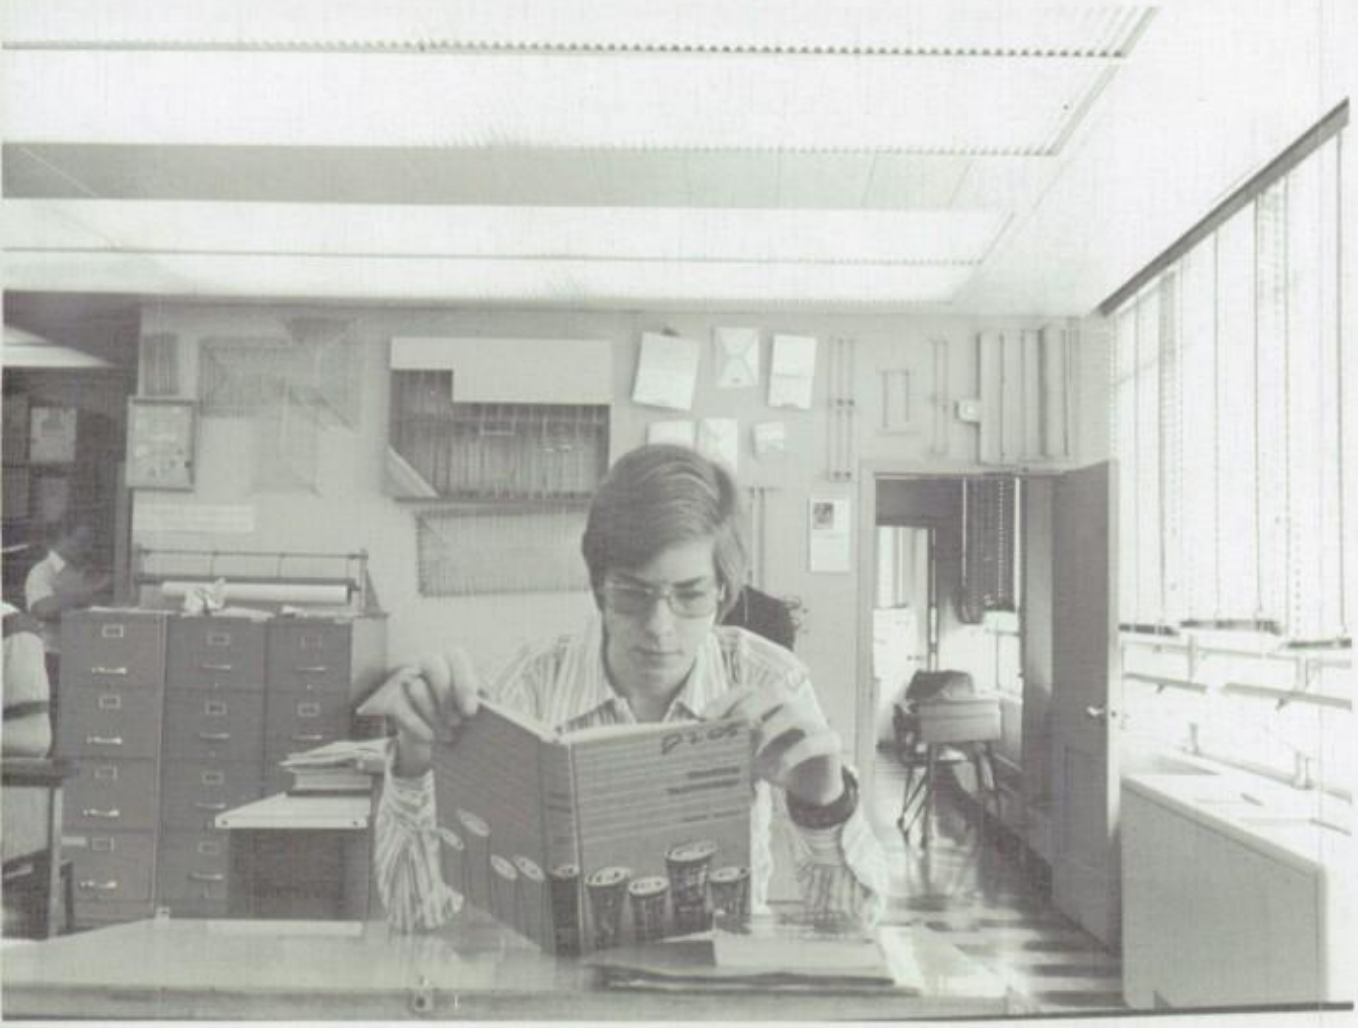
To insure the proper printing of pamphlets, Brian Hinton (below) checks the paper's entry into the press.

As the tool display and posters (below, right) testify, Morton shop courses stress safety and good equipment.



Industrial arts program offers range of courses

Industrial development throughout America's history has made our country the greatest and richest nation in the world. The industrial arts program concentrated on the possibilities of future career development in industry. Mr. M. McDonald stated, "By offering a variety of courses, we are providing an opportunity for students to decide if they want to pursue these fields further after high school." Mr. McDonald, who taught industrial arts survey last year, acted as the temporary Practical Arts Division head while Mr. E. Ludwig left on sabbatical. Entering the department this year were Mr. H. Walraven, who was a substitute teacher last year, and Mrs. M. Jernberg.



Utilizing a power saw in his woodworking class, Tim Rost (above, left) cuts a large piece of lumber which will be used in one of his carpentry, classroom projects.

As Ron Vinyard records the results, Tony Tribuzio (above) checks a car battery's acidity level to make sure that there is more acid than water present.

Having completed his architectural drawings, Paul Renfus (left) uses his spare moments to study new technological terms which he will need for his next project.

Girls' PE classes adopt a new elective program

Strong and healthy individuals build a strong and healthy nation. Physical fitness and development and the knowledge of body mechanics aid in strengthening the members of our society. The Health and Physical Education Department continued its work to build such individuals by establishing an elective program for junior and senior girls. Mr. H. Hohe, the division head, explained, "The elective system worked really well last year with the boys. There were far less absences. More people participated and showed a great deal of enthusiasm." New textbooks and better organization were part of the vast improvement in Morton's newly structured driver education program.

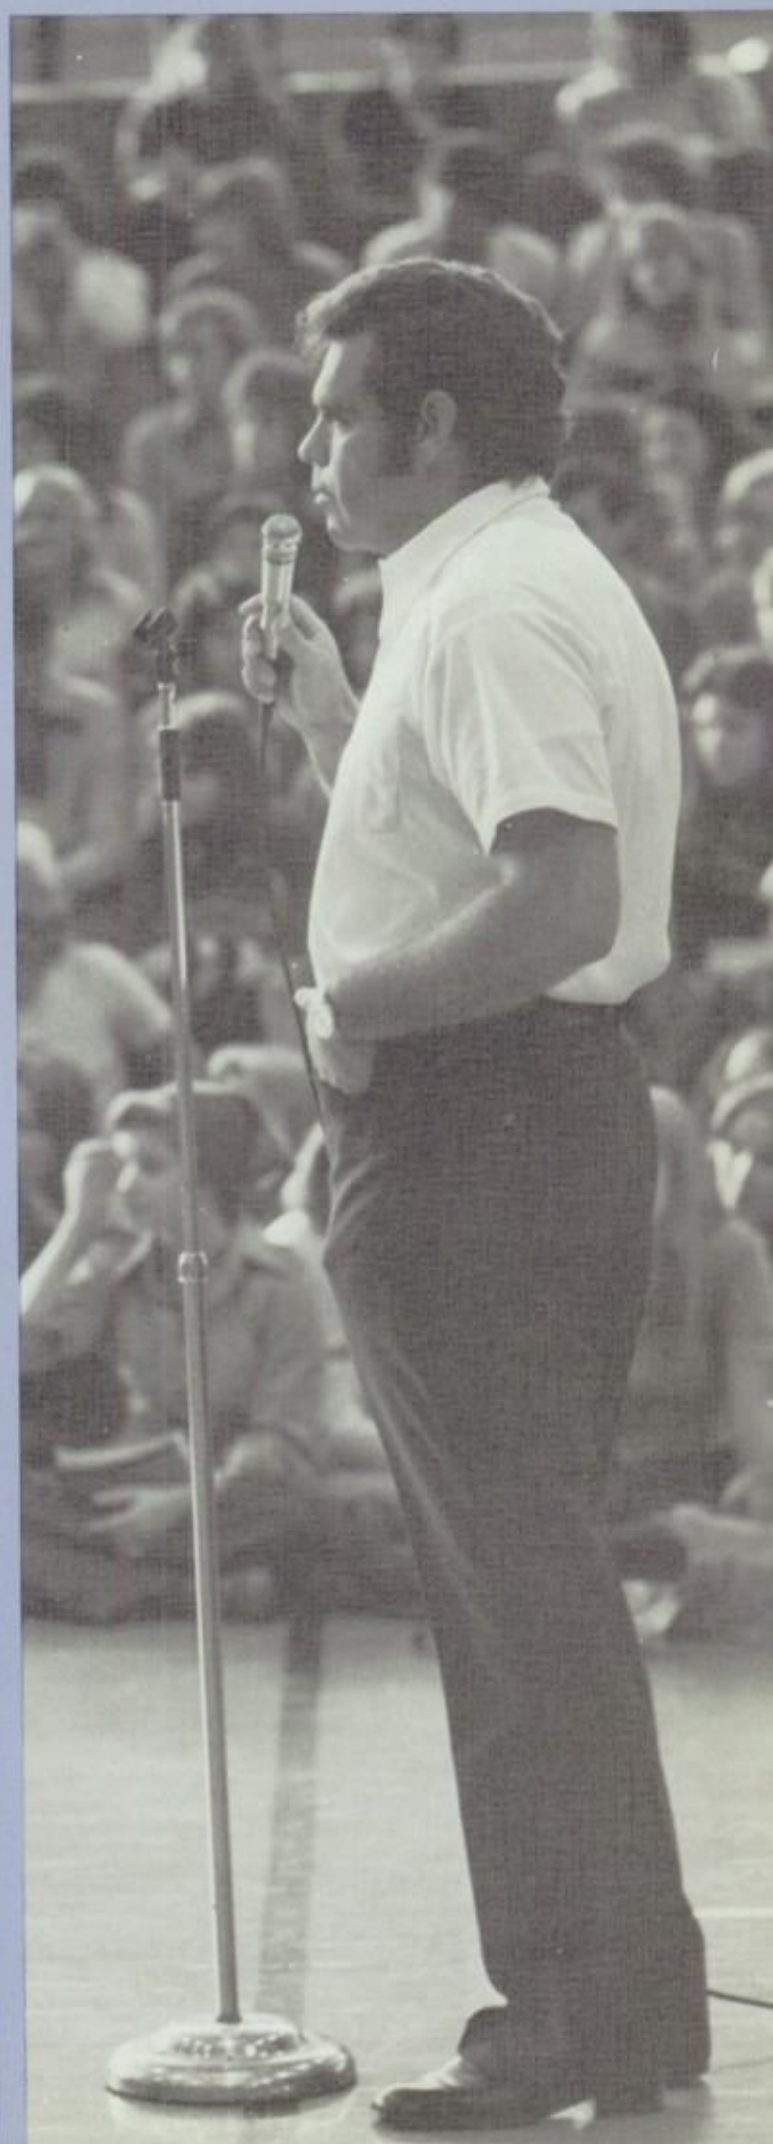
Faculty

Exercising a great influence on the students were the administrators, counselors, and teachers. Teachers related past experiences of their own and those people found in the textbooks. Each instructor varied in his own method of teaching, and each expressed his own personality through the course in which he specialized. Some teachers became involved with the students not only during the ten periods of the day but also after school hours by serving as club advisers, coaches, and chaperones. For the first time faculty members created their own float for homecoming and thereby set an example for students to become involved.



Board approves West's school schedule changes

With the death of their long term member Mr. O. Oplatka, who passed away last October, the board approved the appointment of Mrs. Oplatka to fill her husband's position. Another important change approved by the board was West's new class schedule which set up ten class periods and shortened classes to fifty minutes in length. Superintendent Dr. J. Ondrus, executive officer of the school board, advised the board in what manner to act upon these scheduling changes. The business manager of both Morton East and West, Mr. K. E. Keeling, with the board's approval developed the plan for allotting money for new computer systems introduced at both schools this year.

After a meeting Dr. H. Below (right) elaborates on the various plans for the next teachers' institute day workshop with Mrs. M. Sucansky, a member of the inservice planning committee.

Dr. H. Below coordinates student curriculum plans

As part of her curriculum planning, Dr. H. I. Below made sure that incoming freshmen from all grammar schools had received the basic preparation needed to excel in their various courses. She developed this plan by means of teacher institutes. Mr. R. J. Tudor, director of public relations, cooperated with Dr. Below by letting the public know about the curriculum work throughout the year by means of the newspapers. He also acted as an assistant to the superintendent and took care of renting school facilities. Also, Dr. W. I. Hutchinson, principal, insured the cooperation of all the teachers at Morton West by working with them through their respective department heads.

Working on a news release, Mr. R. J. Tudor (left) concentrates on the copy which he is retyping.

In despair Dr. W. I. Hutchinson (above) ponders the distasteful thought of West's losing a football game.

Change in lunch hours— deans' job made simpler

A new class schedule, greatly affecting the lunch hours, has helped the deans relieve the discipline problems that usually arose at lunchtime. There were five lunch periods, each consisting of twenty-five minutes. According to deans Mr. J. Regan and Mr. S. Manuel the less crowded cafeteria and lack of overlapping lunch hours eased a tense situation.

Also involved with the new schedule was Mr. D. Ciner, assistant principal. He worked with a new computer system which aided the deans in checking attendance and also helped him with scheduling students. Mr. Ciner used the computer to handle student registration, schedule changes, and progress reports.

Mrs. D. Mehochko (above), a secretary, takes notes while Mr. D. Ciner dictates changes in scheduling.

Paraprofessionals insure rights for non-smokers

Morton West increased its use of paraprofessional employees this past year. A total of eight men and women patrolled the halls, conducted study halls, and surveyed the restrooms. They insured non-smokers of their rights by encouraging others to follow the school rules regarding smoking procedures.

Other school service employees included the secretaries in the main office, registration, and guidance along with those working in the deans' office and in department offices. The medical department, coming in contact with almost one hundred students daily, cared for their various illnesses and injuries. The nurses also kept student health records.

New lunch tables reduce maintenance's work load

Both the maintenance staff and the cafeteria staff benefited through the addition of new, colorful cafeteria tables and benches that fold up. The tables made the job of sweeping the floor and organizing the cafeteria a lot easier. Aside from cleaning up, the cafeteria staff prepared about twelve hundred meals daily for students and faculty. There were various foods available, for as Mrs. K. Franczyk said, "We're always open to suggestions from students and faculty on what to serve as long as it is within our limitations." The maintenance staff also provided us with clean, warm, and well lighted classrooms and cared for the school grounds, gym equipment, and athletic facilities.

Classes

When the 777 anxious freshmen entered Morton West, they experienced a new sense of freedom. 820 comfortable sophomores examined the different elements within the school. 782 juniors acquired a freer lifestyle. 770 seniors reminisced their high school years and contemplated the future. United, the students shared many and varied classes, activities, sports, friendships, emotions, talents, problems, memories, challenges, hopes, and dreams. Being more than just statistics, the 3,149 individuals represented 3,149 Americans who experienced and established a quality education at Morton West High School in Berwyn, Illinois.

Seniors

Nearing the end of their four years in high school, the Senior Class was reminiscent of the traditional homecoming festivities, Junior Olympics, and the junior-senior prom. Not to be forgotten were some of the special highlights including the first soccer tournament held downstate and the final concert given by the Ides of March. The seniors exemplified true class spirit at the last homecoming wherein they were awarded the spirit football and the first place trophy in small float competition. United by their endeavors, the class of 1976 was declared independent of Morton West as they received their diplomas on Tuesday, June 8.

Juniors

By the end of their third year in high school, most juniors attained a sense of a freer lifestyle and of growth and fulfillment. A high point in the lives of many juniors was obtaining their drivers' licenses. As upperclassmen, many demonstrated leadership by becoming club officers or team captains. Others took advantage of the many openings in local employment as a result of the new North Riverside shopping mall. Many juniors looked ahead to a higher level of education by attending the annual college night. Great traditional highlights of the year were receiving their class rings and attending the junior-senior prom at the Sabre Room.

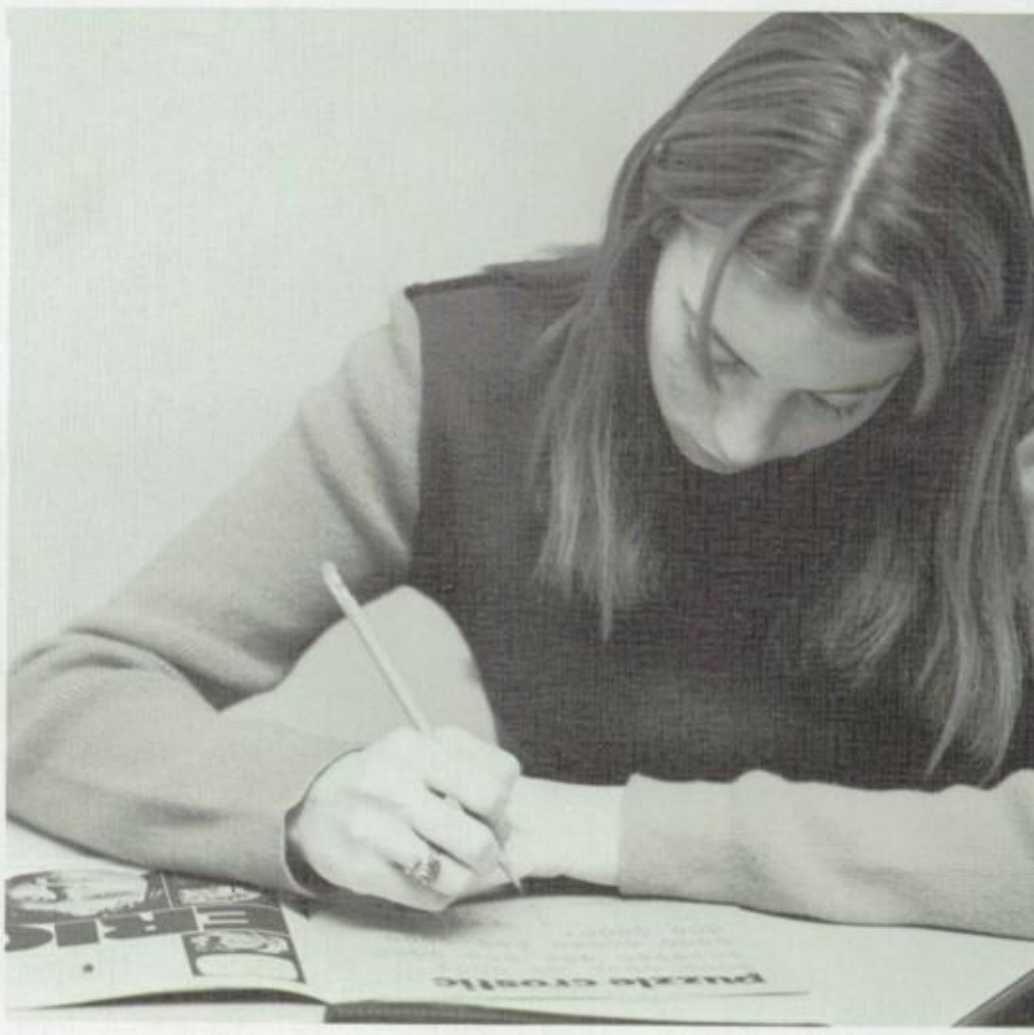
Even though other than academic thoughts are on her mind, Mary Ann Marik (above) gazes over her bouquet of flowers and tries to concentrate on what is happening in the classroom.



While solving a word puzzle in her English class, Sandy Wuest (right) searches for the right answer to fill in the blanks and complete her homework assignment before the period's end.

In his automotive shop course, Alex Medor (left) makes some final adjustments before starting a six cylinder engine.

Sophomores

Feeling comfortable in their second year at Morton West, the sophomores examined the different elements within the school. It was not uncommon for some sophomores to be requested to appear in the deans' office after unsuccessfully testing school personnel. On the academic level, sophomores acquired more friends by means of new classmates to make their social circle still larger. Decked in "blue jeans," they were usually seen in numbers as they attended playnights, sock hops, and various sports events. Aware of the many clubs, organizations, and sports offered, sophomores became stabilized in one or more organizations.

Freshmen

With the onset of their beginning of high school life, it was apparent that the freshmen experienced mixed emotions of anxiety, hesitancy, and eagerness. New to the freshmen was the freedom of choice in chosing their class subjects which allowed them to plan their program for a college preparatory or vocational future. Another change many of them observed was having to take transportation to and from school. By the end of the school year a number of freshmen had become involved in clubs, organizations, sports, and other school related activities, and therefore they became better acquainted with their fellow schoolmates and teachers.

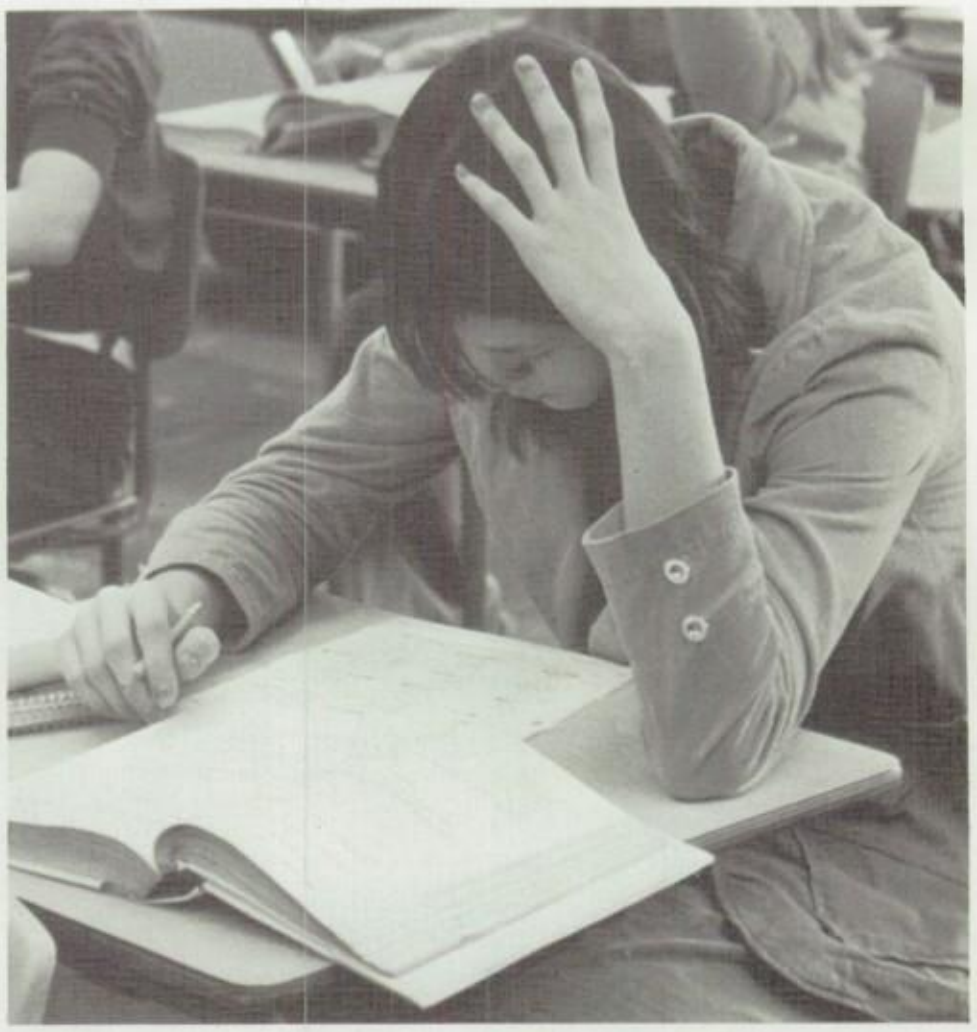
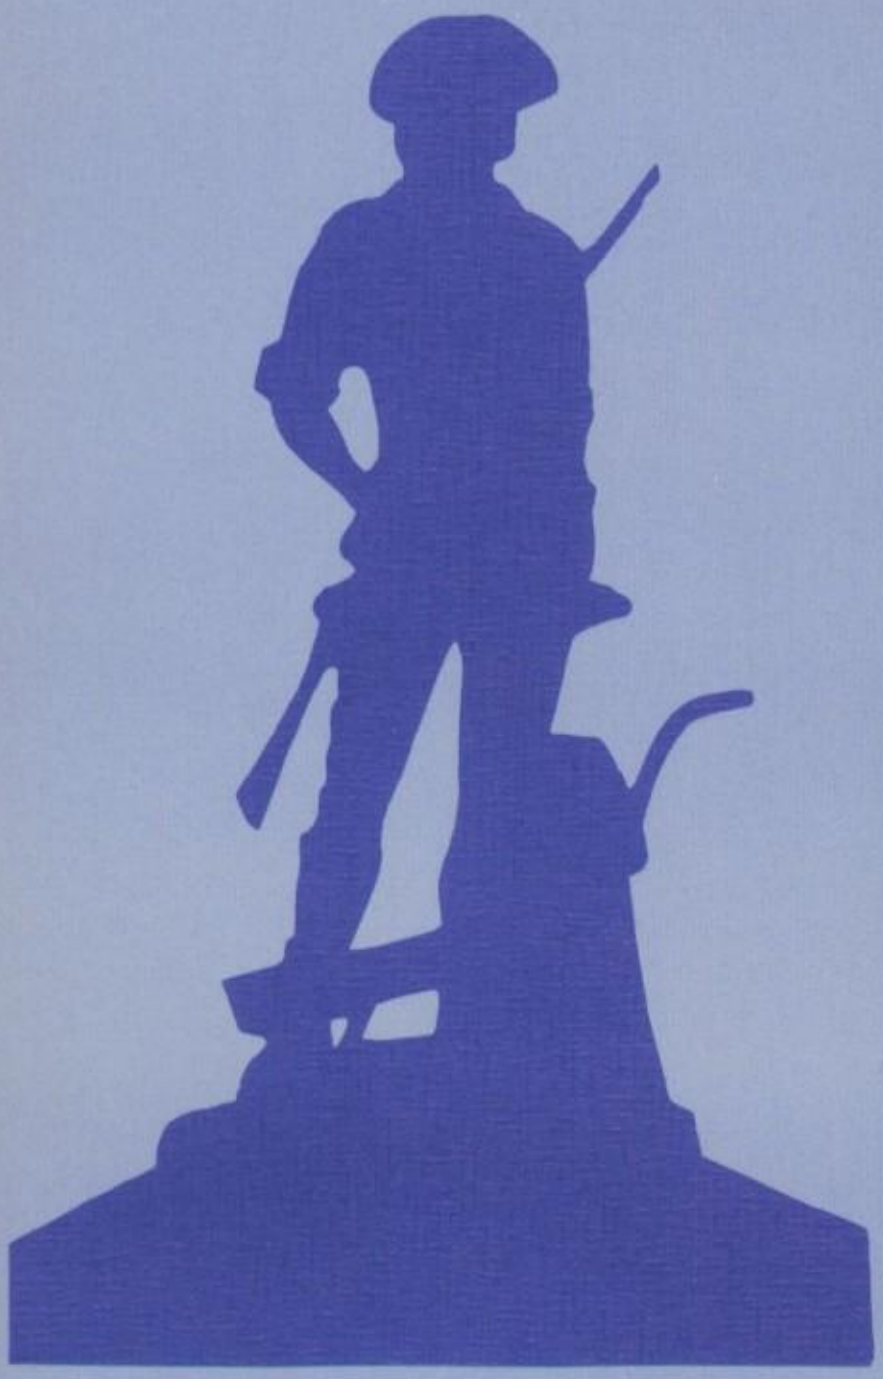
Several freshmen skip algebra, study geometry



Judy Boyd (left) measures the weight of an empty vial before she adds the ingredients which she must weigh exactly for an experiment.

With only minutes left to the period, Lynn Chinchilla (above) decides, nevertheless, that she'll start work on her math assignment.



Activities

Realizing that "being involved" was an important part of their lives, many students participated in extracurricular activities and gained a personal sense of accomplishment and additional knowledge. Each organization prospered through a combination of individual ideas. Besides holding singular meetings, the language clubs merged and enjoyed each others' customs. The service organizations performed projects in the school and community. Demonstrating freedom of the press, the publications' staffs made available their accounts of student life. Other clubs met for the sole pleasure of sharing interests in recreation.

1975 Talon captures two highly acclaimed awards

For the first time in Morton West's history a publication won the two most highly acclaimed awards in high school journalism in the same year. The 1975 Talon won the Medalist and All-American ratings from the Columbia Scholastic and National Scholastic Press Associations. Striving to maintain their high ranking, this year's TALON staff studied and worked to relate the bi-centennial celebration to the Morton West environment. Training for editors began at summer workshops held at the University of Wisconsin, Eau Claire, and Oakland University, Rochester, Michigan. In order to learn more about photgraphy, seven staff members went on a field trip to tour the facilities of Root Photographers in Chicago.

Visiting the University of Illinois in Champaign for an Illinois High School Press Association convention, Patty Drzal and Jeff Yordy (right) relax between classes and read the university paper, the Daily Illini.

While at Root Studios for a Talon field trip, Justina Dabrowski (left) watches how negatives are retouched by a Root employee to improve the quality of the prints sent to our school.

Behind the yearbooks of past years lined on his desk, Mr. R. Hegner (below), the Talon adviser, uses his knowledge of past experience to correct a preliminary layout as he works to meet the deadline.

To meet an upcoming deadline, Julie McClelland (above) compiles information from her research as she types the rough draft of a sports article for the next issue of the Falcon.

Before going out on a photography assignment, Andrew Vorac (above, right) stops shortly to help editor Erin Ryan rearrange and shorten an article which she has just written.

Falcon reporting gathers top journalistic awards

According to Adviser J. Stebbins, the Falcon newspaper kept up with the standards of professional journalism by receiving the highest newspaper awards from the National Scholastic Press and the Quill and Scroll Associations. He attributed the paper's success in part to the understanding nature of the school board. Mr. Stebbins said that the board's understanding of the constitutional amendment granting freedom of the press has enabled his students to report honestly and express their ideas freely without censorship or excessive criticism.

The Egg in its second year of publication saw an increase in the amount of creative material submitted to the literary magazine.

Drama students attend Illinois Theatre Festival

With Gypsy the Drama Department began another busy year. The play's presentation led to the faculty directors and twelve students being invited to participate in the Illinois High School Theatre Festival in Champaign. They presented a workshop entitled "Musical Theatre in a Secondary School," a combination of theatrical discussions and musical numbers from Gypsy. In spring the drama students performed The Lark for the IHSA Contest Play.

Radio Club members began to renovate the radio room by obtaining a loan from the school board. Members were also involved in a program with Station WTAQ in which they actually reported some news from a town meeting.

Working on costumes for The Lark, Liz Recht, Holly Striska and Debbie Storino (above, left) hem a gown.

Band travels to capitol for bicentennial tribute

As usual, both the band and the orchestra students played for school and community concerts and other musical activities. However the band members became more involved in the bicentennial celebration. In the fall the marching band created a special bicentennial tribute with halftime formations of the Liberty Bell and the number seventy-six. In the spring our Concert Band enjoyed a five day trip to Washington, D.C., to take part in a bicentennial salute. The members held a concert at the Rotary Club to raise money to purchase new band hats and accessories for the trip. In Washington they played at the White House, the Capitol Building and the Pentagon.

Mr. T. Fiala (above, right) directs musicians from both the band and orchestra in the pit orchestra for the fall musical Gypsy.

Morton East and West's combined marching band (above) leads the annual homecoming day parade along its designated route.

With lips together and hands positioned on her flute, Carla Chaloupka (right) attentively awaits the director's starting signal.

Prior to the beginning of an orchestra concert, John Parkolap (left) finds a quiet corner to review "Hoe Down," a piece by the American composer, Copland.

In order to extend the spirit of the Christmas season to the halls of Morton, Russ Bezdek and Dave Benson (below) play carols before classes begin.

Mr. Macdonald becomes choral director for year

In his first year Mr. J. Macdonald fulfilled the job of choral director left vacant by Mr. J. Chiado, who left on sabbatical. Led by Mr. Macdonald, the Belles and Beaus, Aeolian Choir, Girls' Choir, Mixed Chorus and Freshman Girls' Chorus presented the Christmas choral concert featuring a finale of the "Hallelujah Chorus." He also directed the Belles and Beaus in other performances and caroling to help the Needy Family Fund.

Music Club, numbering seventy members, carried on their tradition of having a first place homecoming float. At their meetings students gave presentations in which they chose their own music and used their own talent.

Student Council sets up student grievance board

"We tried to accomplish more ways for the student body to express itself," said John Ambrosia, president of the Student Council. The Student Council began its activities with two club workshops in which they discussed the new club handbook, stressed the value of teamwork, and had art teachers demonstrate four different advertising campaigns. Other new activities were two forums or open discussions on the school constitution, a new student body grievance board, and a bulletin board outside the teachers' cafeteria. They also held the traditional events consisting of the Junior Olympics, Phoney Express, turnabout dance and "Battle of the Bands" night.

Tech Guild uses special lighting effects in plays

Under a new adviser, Mr. L. Fialek, the Tech Guild members fulfilled their responsibilities. They used special lighting effects in the fall musical, Gypsy, and in the contest and spring plays. Others active in the field of drama were the Thespians made up of students honored for their acting ability. The group contained performers who had demonstrated their talents in The Seagull, Gypsy, The Lark and the Illinois state speech competition.

Besides tutoring and collecting for UNICEF, the Senior Honor Society members guided parents at the PTO's open house. Junior Honor Society students escorted mothers at the PTO tea and posted the honor roll.

During a Czech Club meeting, Judy Brandt (above, right) listens to the successful results of a bake sale and thinks of several uses for the money.

Increase in membership stimulates culture clubs

Membership in the Czech, French, and German Clubs has increased through the addition of many enthusiastic, first year language students. To learn of the Czech culture, the Czech Club visited the Czechoslovakian Society of America, attended a folk fair, and enjoyed a Czechoslovakian meal. French Club members had an evening of Christmas caroling in French through community streets and held a French banquet. German Club Americanized by replacing the annual Oktoberfest with a roller skating and pizza party. Money gained through flower and bake sales, car washes, and membership dues provided the funds for the activities of all three of the culture clubs this year.

Spanish Club supervises international Halloween

Language club members at West experienced an event which paralleled the crossing of cultures in the settlement of America. Spanish Club members invited all other language clubs to their Halloween party. Czech, French, Italian, German, and Spanish customs merged in an unusual setting. At the party, guests dunked for apples, carved pumpkins using cultural facial characteristics, and enjoyed French bakery. The Spanish Club also celebrated many Spanish holidays including one called Day of Dead. The Italian Club sponsored a playnight, an unusual money-making activity for a language club, and also held a bake sale. Profits helped to pay for an Italian banquet.

Ecology Club formulates plan for glass recycling

As America has shown to other countries, Ecology Club demonstrated to the community that environmental care is important for all varieties of life. The club's membership increased this year because of this concern for the environment. Recycling paper, petitioning for the Hinsdale Prairie, and collecting debris on school grounds were some of the members' activities. They made field trips to Wolf Road Prairie, Fullersburg Nature Preserve, and the Little Red Schoolhouse. They also visited the Coca Cola and Pepsi Cola plants and began plans for a glass recycling center.

Members of the Medical Careers Club welcomed many guest speakers from various hospitals, orphanages, and convalescent homes. The members visited disabled people, offered companionship to the elderly, and made Christmas stockings for orphan children.

New club demonstrates interest in world affairs

In its first year, the Model United Nations Club held several mock sessions of the UN General Assembly, and it also conducted forums facsimileing an international exchange of ideas. Trips to Chicago State University, Lake Geneva, and Boston conferences emphasized the club's understanding of world affairs.

The newly formed Simulation Games Club began a chess league and ran several other game tournaments. Although the main participants were club members, the group invited anyone from the student body to join any of their activities held primarily on Saturdays.

Interscholastic program affects GAA activities

"All girls are automatic members. There are no dues, ties, or selections, a girl can come out for one, some or all of the activities," said Mrs. E. Theel about the Girls' Athletic Association. The schedule for this year's activities included archery, bowling, volleyball, apparatus and softball. Because of the enlarged girls' interscholastic sports program, some activities diminished, and basketball was cancelled.

Members of the Modern Dance Club learned how to "let themselves go" at the two club sponsored dance days. They also went on a field trip to a professional dance show in Chicago and performed in their own annual show to conclude their activities.

Baton Twirlers portray Robin Hood's merry men

Three active groups at West were the Baton Twirlers, the Swim Club and the Ski Club. At the homecoming assembly, the Baton Twirlers presented routines used in individual baton twirling competition. Their costumes portrayed Robin Hood and his merry men when they marched in the homecoming parade. Last spring Swim Club members used "The USA Our Way" as the theme of their swim show to be the first group at Morton West to deal with an American theme for the bicentennial celebration. This year most of their time was spent preparing another show based on our American heritage entitled "Modern Movies." Ski Club had an increased enrollment. Members filled two buses on each of the seven skiing outings.

Booster Club's activities serve school, community

Booster Club members sold refreshments at all home football and basketball games. In the fall the girls repainted the school concession stand and constructed a homecoming float. During the winter a new basketball schedule required that they work on both Tuesday and Friday nights. The members extended service beyond Morton West by holding bake sales for various charities and making items for people in convalescent homes and hospitals.

M Club members began the year with an unusual initiation. Later they purchased T-shirts which they wore on Fridays, held a playnight with music by Alliance, and ushered at all of the school's pep assemblies.

Athletics

At the close of the school day the athletic program began. Morton West offered an extensive program for the sports-minded individuals which included the native American sports of basketball, volleyball, and baseball, the national game of the United States, and the fastest growing American participant sport of tennis. Boys competed in football, soccer, track, cross-country, basketball, wrestling, swimming, golf, tennis, and baseball. With more consideration being given to the women's rights in our society, the girls' athletic program expanded and included basketball, bowling, softball, swimming, tennis, and volleyball.

Varsity baseball takes first place in DPVL play

Morton West's varsity baseball team, under the coaching of Mr. R. Hahn, completed a fine season of conference play with a record of eleven wins and three losses to finish as league champions. Five players batted over .300. The team's most valuable players were pitcher-outfielder Phil Colonero and infielder Jeff Zitek. Zitek was also voted the most outstanding conference player by the baseball coaches in the league. Ken Pasternak was the most improved player of the season as he led the team in home runs and finished with the second highest batting average. Mr. Hahn said, however, that it was not individuals but a team effort that won the championship in the DesPlaines Valley.

Freshman and new coach earn second place finish

Earning a fourth place finish this past season, the Morton West Sophomore Baseball Team had the potential for a much better year. Coach R. Kozurek explained that the sophomores lost three close games which made the difference between a second and fourth place berth. Coach Kozurek said that he expected a number of the ballplayers to make up the nucleus of next year's varsity team and hoped that they would better their sophomore efforts.

Finishing with nine wins and five defeats, this year's freshman team ended the year in second place. Mr. J. Breck, who coached the freshman team for the first time, was pleased with his players' performances.

Bihun, Abram lead West to best season since '61

Following the pace set by this year's captains, Bill Bihun and Jon Abram, the Morton West Varsity Basketball Team finished in a solid second place. They trailed only an undefeated East Leyden in the conference standings to finish the year with 12 wins and 4 losses.

Coach R. Hahn stated, "They are the best team since 1961; it's teams like this that keep me young." Although no records were established, Bill Bihun was the top team scorer, and Jon Abram was the leading rebounder. The team entered tournament play at Riverside where they beat their first opponent, Mendal High School, but lost their next contest by three points to De La Salle High School.

West sophomores finish in a tie for first place

Concluding the season with 12 wins and 4 defeats, the Morton West Sophomore Basketball Team finished in a tie for the conference lead. The most valuable players, Ed Wojciechowski and Carl Bogdan, were the dominant figures throughout the season; Ed was also this year's captain. Coach W. Porter stated, "This was a hard working team of which many of the players exhibited a high degree of self-discipline." Freshman Coach R. Bangert was surprised by the large number of players who came for tryouts. For the first time in ten years there were over eighty boys who tried out for the team. However, the freshmen ended their season with a record of 2 wins and 11 losses.

Don and Tom Piha make DPVL all-star grid team

This year's varsity football team was better than the won-lost showing indicated. They worked hard during the practices, but in the games they allowed too many turnovers. Bright spots in the line-up were Don and Tom Piha and John Svetich. The Piha brothers were on the Des Plaines Valley League's all-star team. Svetich played well at quarterback.

While the junior varsity team was not officially in conference competition, they did play. They finished with three wins and three losses including an opening day victory over rival Morton East. Overall their play was fair to average with Coach W. Keller citing many of the regular players for a good year.

Player turnout down for freshman football team

Displaying an improvement over their freshman year, this year's sophomore team won three and lost five. Led by coaches R. Harb and J. Breck, the team lost only one game by more than two touchdowns. The close game losses gave the team an overall record that really didn't indicate their better performance.

Although the player turnout for freshman football was very discouraging this year, the spirit demonstrated was not. The freshman "A" football team finished the year at two wins, five losses, and one tie while the "B" team ended the season with six wins and two losses. Assistant Coach E. McMahon remarked that the teams received very good fan support.

Steven Hula takes meet in sudden death playoff

Ending an unfortunate season in seventh place with two wins and six losses, the varsity golf team did have a few high points. A sudden death playoff meant victory for Steve Hula in one big meet while scores from his fellow golfers came as pleasant surprises in the same match. Many of the golfers turned in better scores at their home course Carriage Greens than when they competed on the unfamiliar courses of the opposing schools during away meets.

The sophomore golfers fared no better than the varsity. They ended their year with no wins and eight defeats. Practicing almost daily, the sophomores had many good shots, but they just couldn't match them in the meets.

Team reaches semi-finals in state soccer contest

Many outstanding highlights marked the varsity soccer team's good season. The team played a close sectional game against Quigley High as they won the overtime period by scoring on more penalty kicks. This victory qualified the team to play downstate in the tournament. During their first game downstate, Joe Svec scored the team's only goal to win 1-0. Unfortunately, they lost their next game by an identical score. This tournament ranked the team fourth in the state. The frosh-soph team finished the year with six wins and two defeats in their conference play. The newly formed Soccerettes helped officials and cheered on both the varsity and sophomore team members.

Kammerer finishes fifth in state competition

Finishing in fourth place this past season with 2 wins and 3 losses, the varsity swimming team qualified three members for state competition. Sophomore Lou Kammerer finished first in the district meet. He then advanced to state competition where he swam in the 50 yard freestyle event and placed fifth. Once again this year, Coach J. Will sent two divers to state as he has done for the past five years. Dave Muth and Mike Martin finished second and third in the districts to qualify for the state meet. Both boys had a list of dives comparable to the top collegiate divers. The sophomores finished in third place with a record of 2 wins and 3 losses.

Swim maids offer cheers and assistance at meets

The freshman swimming team ended the season with a record of 1 win and 13 defeats. Despite their overall record, Coach E. McMahon noted that the group remained determined and enthusiastic. The members worked on all the aspects of swimming and diving and learned the importance of team work required on a competitive sport level in high school.

The Swim Maids supplied all levels of swimming with shouts of enthusiasm and encouragement. They also assisted officials by keeping and posting timings and recording final scores. Another task they performed was making program booklets that they provided at all home swimming meets to the fans.

Krupicka is sophomore third singles champion

Despite the individual efforts of seniors Scott Stanley and Jim Hora, the varsity tennis team had a hard time getting it all together. All singles and doubles players turned in even or winning records, yet as a team they finished in sixth place of the Des Plaines Valley standings. Stanley received the outstanding athlete award, and Hora finished the year with an eleven and three record, the best on the team.

Although they finished in fifth place, the frosh-soph tennis team had its own champion. Lenny Krupicka ended the year as the DPVL third singles champ. Coach J. Foran said "He won because of his hard work, determination, and ability to play a good defensive game."

Lodding tops track team in individual scoring

The varsity track team had a fair year. Finishing with three wins and three losses, many of the athletes coached themselves as part of Coach G. Busse's training schedule. Keith Lodding, a high jumper, led the team in individual scoring. Steve Hula, a pole-vaulter, also had a good season. The sophomore team finished their schedule with three wins and two defeats while the freshmen team ended the year with a two and one mark. Highlighting the season for the freshmen was a sound win over East Leyden by the score of ninety-four to nineteen. The other meet that they won was by forty-six points. Coach G. Busse was pleased with the overall track performance and team effort.

Coached by Mr. G. Busse, the cross-country members found themselves in a strenuous sport. Everyday after school the runners jogged around the Morton campus and Berwyn area to prepare for meets. Jim Kopkowski and Bob Conner led the cross country team in their league meets this year. Both always ended on top or near the top in individual finishes and point scoring.

Helping at every track meet, the Track Aids worked as hard as the athletes at their jobs. Taking accurate timings, measurements, and scores, the Track Aids completed a necessary job. Mr. Busse said, "The devotion of time and pride in the work they did helping officials and athletes deserves many thanks."

Keating finishes season third in state sectionals

This year's varsity wrestling team ended the year with 4 wins and 4 defeats. Led by Captain Jim Keating, they finished in a tie for fourth place with two grapplers qualifying as all-conference wrestlers. Besides qualifying for all-conference, Keating took a third in state sectionals at Rich South H.S. Dwight Maddox, wrestling at 98 pounds, was the other all-conference member. Grover Repp, a junior wrestling at 155 pounds, took a first in districts. Coach D. Matheny commented on the fact that the team was made up mostly of juniors and sophomores. The sophomore team suffered because of this loss of team members and concluded the year with 1 win and 6 losses.

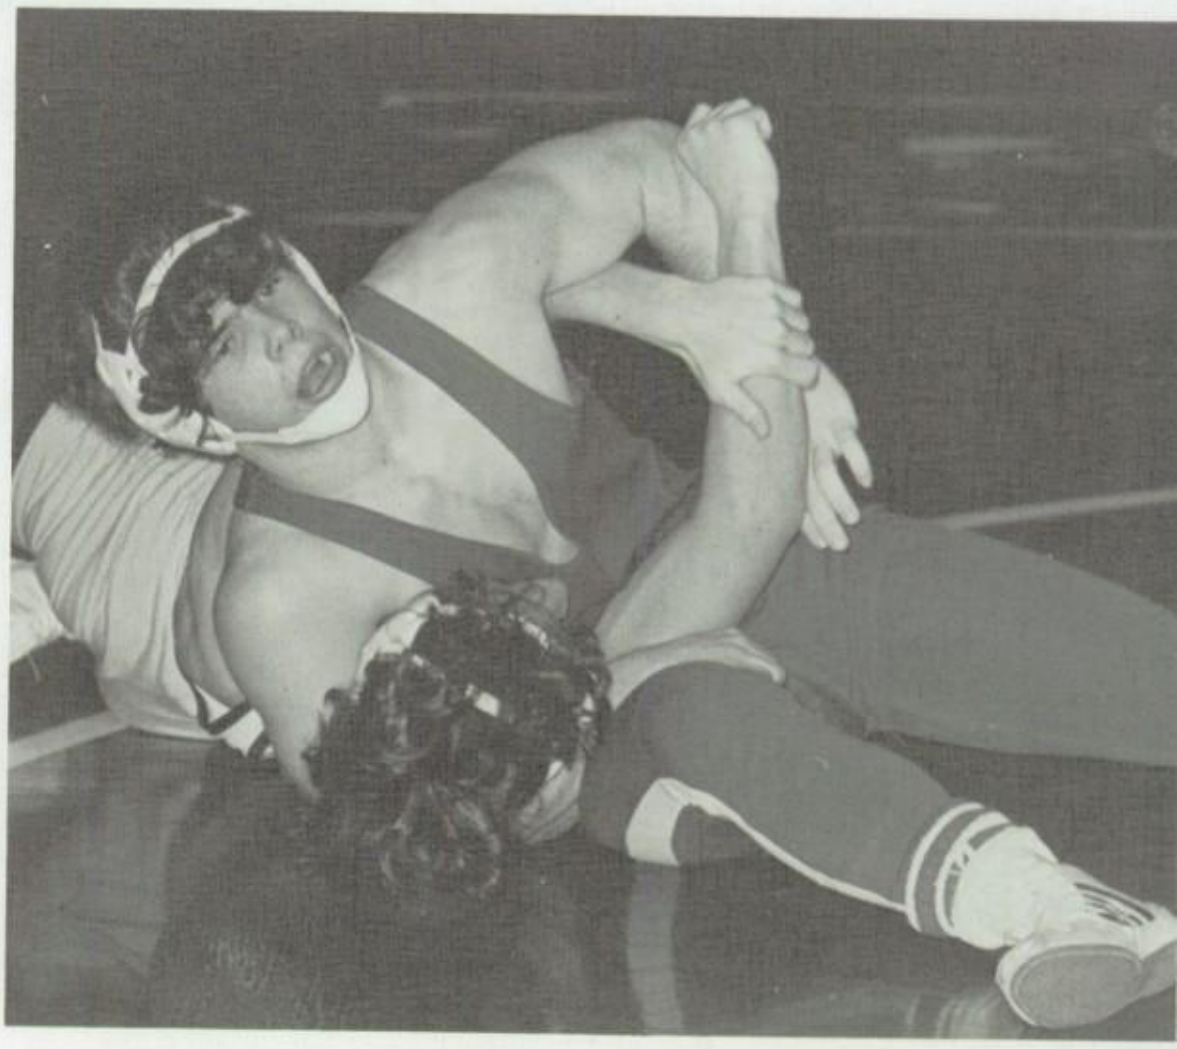
Eager freshman matmen learn basics for future

Concluding the season with 4 wins and 5 defeats, the freshman wrestling team concentrated on developing for the future. Coaches J. Evans and R. Harb taught the basics and prepared the team for their coming years as sophomore and varsity matmen. This year's team remained enthusiastic and eager to learn. Helping to carry over this enthusiasm, the Wrestling Aids shouted out encouragement and cheered all levels of wrestlers onto victory. They also served as period markers and scorekeepers during all home meets. Coach D. Matheny felt the girls added an extra dimension to to the sport as the boys seemed to perform better because of the girls' interest and help.



Locking his hands together to maintain his near pin position on his opponent, Dan Latham (left) anxiously awaits the pin signal from the referee.

Pom Pon dance to 'Tush' wins fourth place trophy

Morton West's Cheerleaders and Pom Pon Girls performed during the football and basketball seasons. The cheerleaders practiced two nights every week to memorize their cheers. They held workshops this year to help newcomers at their tryouts. For the first time in the school's history, the cheerleaders had a young man try out for the squad. Chris Borzym was the first male to ever make the cheerleading squad. Besides their regular halftime routines, the Pom Pon Girls competed at Willowbrook High School against twenty-four other pom pon squads. They received a fourth place trophy for originality in a dance routine that they did to the hit single "Tush," that they also performed at West.

Girls' bowling team wins district, goes to Peoria

For the second year in a row, the Morton West Girls' Bowling Team after being undefeated in league conference play won the district and advanced to the state tournament in Peoria. In the district play-offs, Morton West narrowly beat Proviso West by 23 pins. In state competition, the girls were eliminated after the first round to place nineteenth out of 32 participating schools at Peoria.

This year's girls' swimming team finished with 1 win and 4 defeats. Coach B. Sorenson stated, "This year we had more depth to our team and a greater understanding of competition." She added, "The girls went all out in their efforts during practice and in meets."

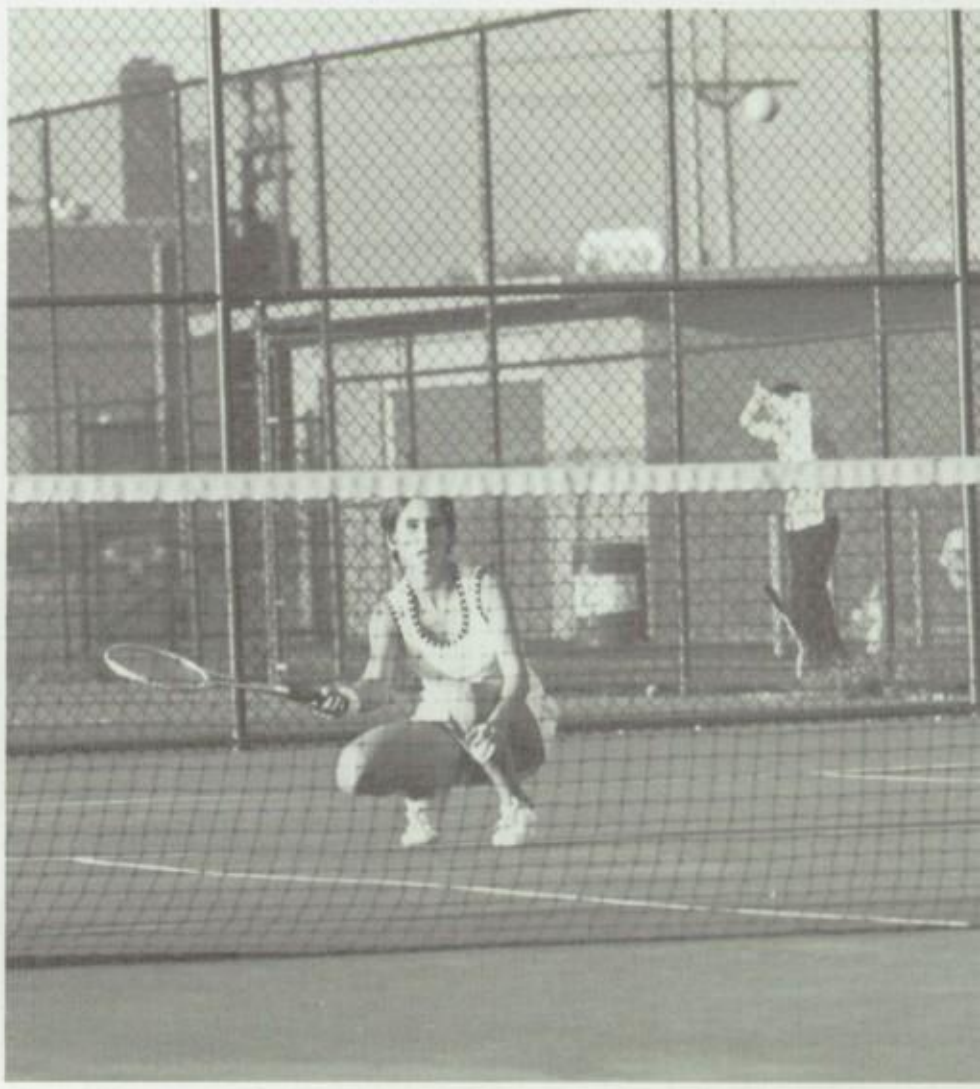
Margaret Saran claims position on all-star team

Under the new coaching of Mrs. R. Hapac, the recently formed girls' "A" volleyball team finished with a record of 3 wins and 5 defeats. Margaret Saran averaged five service points per game and was on the league's all-star team. Her sister Laura set a record for scoring twelve points in one game. The girls' "B" volleyball team also finished with a record of 3 and 5. Mrs. Hapac credited Captain Debbie Michaels, Kathy Richards and Lisa Saran for their efforts.

Completing the year with a 6 and 2 record, the girls' tennis team finished third in conference play. Patty Giannis was the first Morton girl to advance to state competition. Patty, undefeated in league dual meets, also won the league meet's first singles title.



Displaying the proper form to volley a low return, Patty Giannis (right), the first singles player, bends down to the ball and gains better control of her shot as it safely floats well over the top of the net.

Showing the power that tennis demands of its players, Lee Ann Finder (far left) with an upward follow-through to gain top spin slams a forehand drive back to her opponent.

After reading an article entitled "Who's Raising the Kids?" family psychology students breakup into groups to discuss issues which involve many problems that parents face in modern day child raising.

While sitting comfortably on one of the table tops in the drafting classroom, Greg Moon stops to read an article while he searches through several magazines to gather some ideas for his next project.

Students congregate in front of the school building as Morton teachers and firemen clear the halls of stragglers during a fire drill.

Quickening their pace to get into the school building and out of the cold, students (right) arrive on time for their first hour classes.

Holding tightly onto her books, Celeste Kroll (below) walks toward the front entrance of Morton on a cold but quite sunny winter morning.

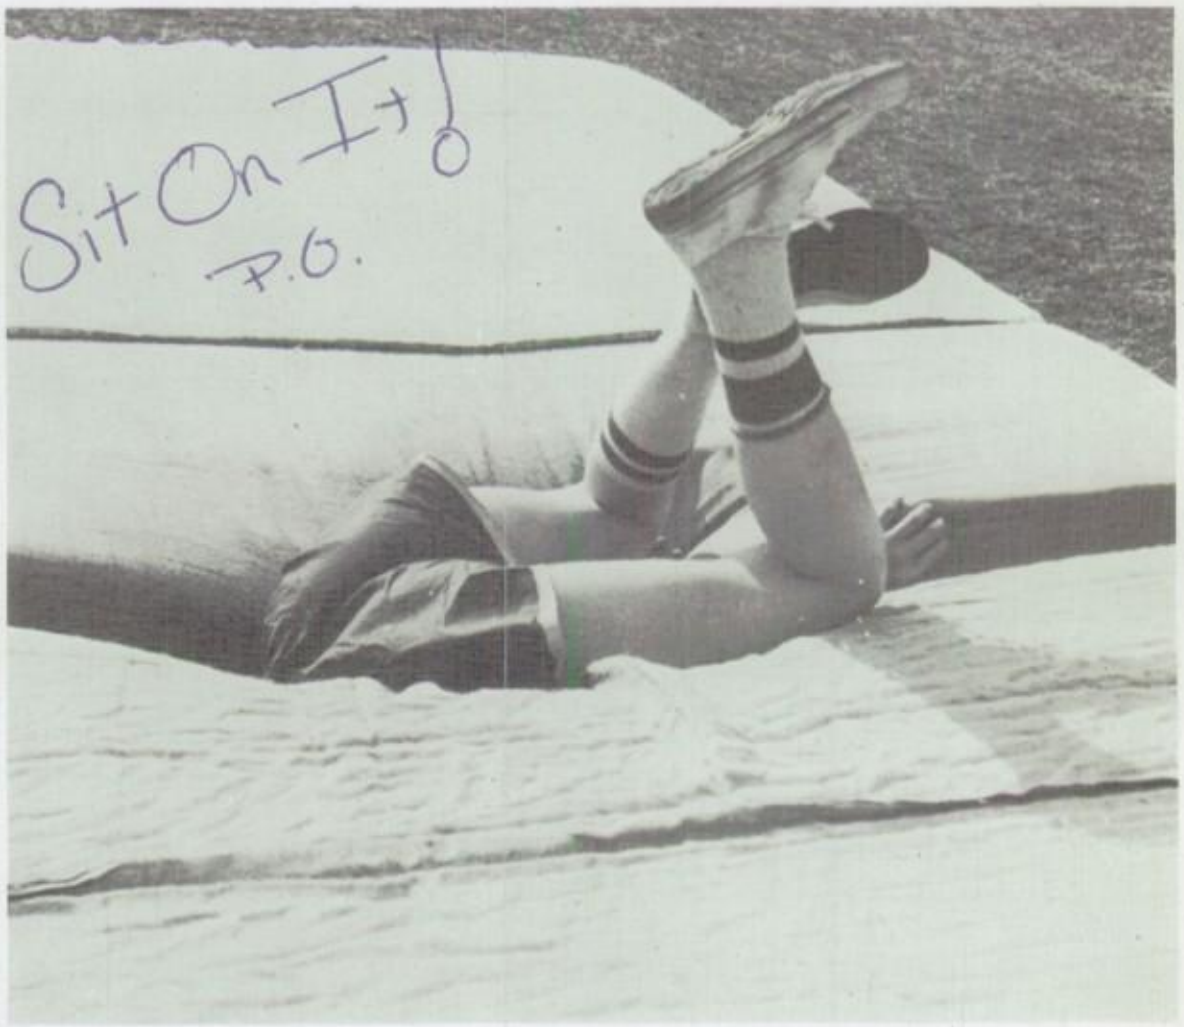
With a giant size food can label in the background, Cyndi Kiener (left) reads her current issue of the Falcon to learn of upcoming Morton activities.



Caught in a uniquely awkward position, an unidentified athlete (above) contemplates a method of extricating himself from between two high-jump cushions.

Using the foyer as a study hall before school begins, Milan Bystry hurriedly completes one of his homework assignments due that day.

Acknowledge the pursuit of happiness as a human right

Our country's forefathers felt so strongly about its peoples' happiness that in the Declaration of Independence they officially acknowledged the pursuit of happiness as a human right. Among the many means of achieving happiness, we have the options to attend or participate in sporting events, to enjoy movie, television, or theatre entertainment, to hear music on the radio or in concert, to dress in the latest fashions, to travel across our land, and to gather with our families and friends. It is easy for us to take happiness for granted, for Americans believe that happiness is a natural right and pursue it in a number of ways.

1) During a bicycle field trip Mr. M. Anderson's advanced English class tours the side streets of Oak Park. 2) Amy Molinaro and Frank Havlovic enjoy an evening at the traditional junior-senior prom. 3) Stopping at the book rack in Murphy's, Betsy Baley skims through the number one best seller. 4) Ann Skalecki entertains a Morton audience in the role of a stripper in Gypsy. 5) Overjoyed with a touchdown at the homecoming game, the Morton crowd expresses their happiness with confetti and cheers. 6) Finding pleasure in strumming her guitar, Cindy Malarik is joined in harmony by Sue Nekolny. 7) Walter Babiek and Therese Montana forget the problems of the school day as they saunter toward the parking lot. 8) Confronted by noise in the cafeteria during lunch, Mark Haure finds comfort in the music of his transistor radio.

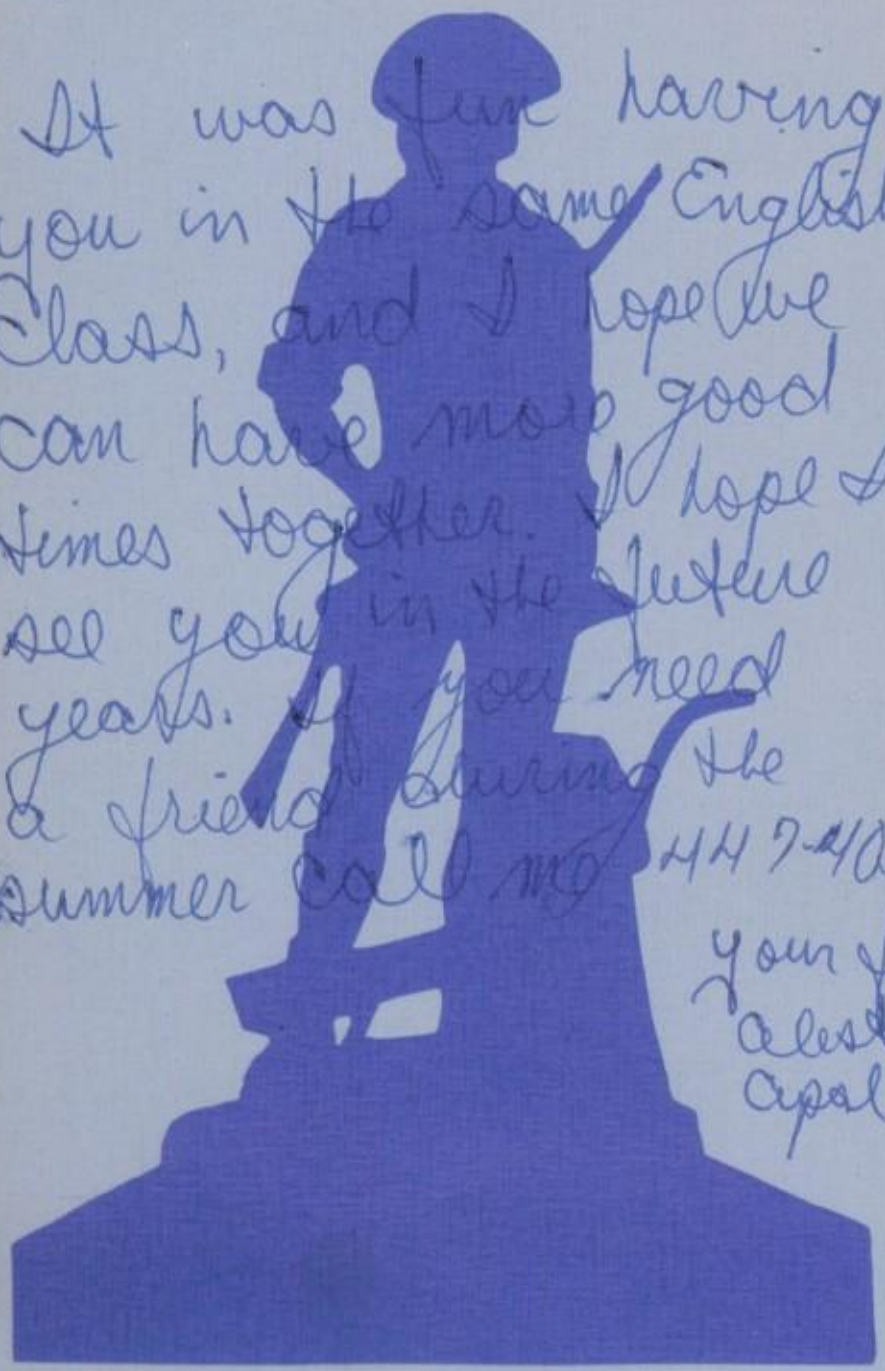
Dear Kevin,

It was fun having you in the same English class, and I hope we can have more good times together. I hope I see you in the future years. If you need a friend during the summer call me 444-7459

Your friend,
Aleste Apal



View American tradition as the future as well as the past

As we reflect upon our American history with its changing tradition that has become our heritage, we also look to our future. When we undergo any change, we adopt the experimental nature of our forefathers. As we learn of their hopes and dreams which built our nation, we develop some of our own. As we fulfill our hopes and dreams, we pursue our natural right of happiness. We search new frontiers for individual success. Wondering what tomorrow holds in store for us, we too look forward to what might be over the next hill or around the next bend. By reflecting upon our past and present, we see the promise of what the future holds for us.

1) After planting a tree to enhance future beauty on the campus, Cody Mares completes the job by shoveling excess dirt into a wheelbarrow. 2) With a steady hand, Vic Martinek videotapes highlights of the homecoming game for later viewing by the Morton television system WMAV-TV. 3) With the door open to him, a student anticipates what tomorrow has in store. 4) Viewing the "Windy City" Chicago from atop the observation deck of the John Hancock Building, a student surveys the ever-changing skyline.

Kevin,
It was nice
in Gym and in Bowling. See you over the summer in softball and in Baseball. CABIN RULES

Kevin,
Well we both made
it through another year & we didn't have to put up with Munzak! See you this summer. Don't forget to say hi!
Love,
